health examinations nor to those suffering with minor ailments. Only chronic diseases of three months or more standing are treated. The Doctor is willing to give freely of his services to those really needing them but is not willing to use his valuable time and strength on cases and conditions not needing expert advice or special treatment.

Chronic Diseases Chronic Diseases to be successfully handled must be scientifically and systematically studied and patiently and perseveringly treated, and this can be better done by a specialist like Dr. Barbrick who makes this his life work and is constantly giving this branch of practice his whole time, thought and attention.

three grand-children, Donald T. Graffam of Glendora, Helen M. Graffam of Redlands University, and Delbert Graffam of Pasadena. Mrs. Eleanor Rand of Main street, Lewiston is a niece.

I want you to know that the columns of the Lewiston Journal have given many hours of genuine pleasure to my good father.

We do not know just how many of Mr. Graffam's old comrades and friends in Lewiston and Auburn are alive. Two or three years ago, the group that attended a Rotary club session numbered almost a dozen. We wish that the adjutant would send us a list of the living Grand Army members in this com- munity.

Mrs. Theodore Bisson

Mrs. Theodore Bisson, 81, for- merly Madeleine Poirier died Fri- day evening in her home 69½ Lin- coln street, Lewiston, after the birth of her seventh child. Mrs. Bisson was born at Prince Edward Island, but had lived in Lewiston 15 years. Before her marriage she was employed at Healy Asylum, the Lewiston orphanage for boys, where she was well liked and fre- quently visited after her marriage.

Besides her husband, she leaves three sons, Lionel, Daniel and Robert; four daughters, Anita, Lorraine, Jacqueline, and the in- fant yet to be named. There are also two sisters, Mrs. Jean Nadeau of Old Town, and the other in Portland.

Mrs. Bisson was a member of St. Mary's parish, Lewiston.
